THURSDAY, JANUARY 23, 1913.

An Evening Echo.

Let us not be too prodigal when we are young, nor too parsimonious when we are old, otherwise we shall fall into the common error of those who, when they had the power to enjoy, had not the prudence to acquire; and when they had the prudence to acquire, had no longer the power to enjoy. —COLTON.

The leading quality thus far shown for the presidency by Woodrow Wilson is the veto habit. He vetoed the inaugural bill before he even had the power of veto.

The Palmetto state is having a mass of ugly words served it in a controversy between Governor Blease and Senator Tillman, but the residents thereof should take neither seriously as they are different without a distinction.

Here is where the Telegram slips one over Uncle Presley Morris, editor of the Parkersburg State Journal: The Weston Independent is one of the best edited, newsiest and most widely read newspapers in the United States of America.

Coming Down.

Lower prices on gun powder—Headline of a Washington dispatch in the Clarksburg Exponent.

Thus is the high cost of living being brought down by the Democrats.

An "Awful" Crowd.

An awful crowd of office seekers is getting ready to march on Washington, but they can't sleep comfortably on the White House lawn until about May 1.—Clarksburg Exponent.

Of Course Not.

A commission wouldn't cut out politics in this city.—Headline in the Clarksburg Exponent.

Most assuredly not—not any more than a business man would expect to cut out business by operating a remodeled store. As well could one expect to take the moisture from water, heat from fire or rays from the sunlight to remove politics from political affairs.

An Inspiration.

Newspaper men are breaking into the United States Senate surprising, but not yet from West Virginia.—Weston Independent.

This may inspire Presley W. Morris, editor of the Parkersburg State Journal, to throw his hat into the senatorial ring down at Charleston. Our Uncle tried a few years ago to break into the House of Representatives, but his voters of his district cruelly slammed the door in his face. The only trouble with him then was that he did not run "at large" as the Telegram desired.

Bland's Kidnapper.

Who kidnapped that independent, bold, defiant, demonstrative, ungovernable Senator Bland of two years ago, and set in his place in the senate the submissive, meek, tractable and flexible fifteenth of the fribbling fifteen—"childlike and bland," as the poet remarked?—Weston Independent.

The Telegram's "confidential" man at Charleston says the Bland kidnapper's name is Clarence W. Watson and that the only ransom the latter asks is for Walter Stuart, editor of Bland's newspaper at West Union, to speak gently of him hereafter.

Keeping Tab.
What the public needs is a bureau such as California, Wisconsin and possibly other states have provided by keeping close tab on each legislator, with a view to carrying his record back to his home and laying it bare before his constituents.—Weston Independent.

Would not a legislative recess of thirty days, say, as is provided by the constitution of California, provide a means for the people to keep a pretty close tab on the legislator and also for the legislator to keep a close tab on the people? And, would not both people and legislator thus have a better tab on laws that are proposed for enactment?

All Things in Due Season.

For twenty several days the West Virginia senate has met, and, after prayer by the Rev So-and-So, adjourned without affecting an organization. The Herald-Dispatch is a firm believer in the efficacy of the prayers of just men and good women. It has implicit faith in the piety and singleness of purpose of the good men who have prayed for the West Virginia senate. That the prayers offered up for that body have not shaken its Fabian hold upon the altar of dereliction, is nothing to the discredit of the pleaders. It merely argues that the brethren have been wrestling with a somewhat tougher subject than usual, and that all will be well in good time. But, if we may add our feeble mite, "Send the answer NOW."—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

The Herald-Dispatch should calm itself and have patience, remembering that patience is a golden virtue and remembering also the Scriptural injunction: "...your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask Him."

Maintain Peace.

Under the paradoxical heading, "A Good Start," the Fairmont West Virginian says:

"The special charter bill has now a good start and will soon be in Charleston before the legislature. Now, if the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Men's Association and other organizations will send committees to Charleston to tell the legislature what action has been taken here and what we want, no force but the blackest treachery can prevent its speedy passage, and we doubt if it can be stopped even by foul means. If we fail now, it means a two years' fight, and the day this bill goes to its death in the legislature for the lack of attention or influences which are supposed to have a powerful weight with our legislators, that day will mark the beginning of 'A Two Years' War' in the Monongahela Valley that will be heard and recognized immediately by the roar of the cannon of indignation."

Why not leave the side of special legislation and get on the side of a square deal for all by supporting the enactment of a municipal code law, thus abolishing the senseless biennial expedient of sending a trainload of select committees to Charleston, of starting a two years' war, of permitting the "blackest treachery" or "foul means"; and of firing the "cannon of indignation"?

In any event, the Telegram, being in favor of peace and tranquility, is opposed to anything like a two years' war in the Monongahela valley.

BIRD BILL

Passes the Senate without Opposition and is Sent to the House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—The McLean bill for federal protection of migratory birds has been passed without opposition by the Senate and sent over to the House.

John B. Burnham, president of the American Game Protective and Propagation Association, through the efforts of which the matter of federal protection was brought to an issue, was present. He said:

"The passage of this bill is the greatest step in the right direction that has ever been made in the cause of game protection in this country. If the bill passes the House and becomes law, we shall be in position to save from extinction many species of valuable game and insectivorous birds that are otherwise doomed."

MEASLES CLOSE SCHOOL.

MORGANTOWN, Jan. 23.—The Dug Hill school has been closed owing to an epidemic of measles in that neighborhood. Three or four pupils attending the school have the disease. The enrollment numbers about 20.

NOT SECOND STREET.

In the solution to "Who is Who" in Wednesday's Telegram, the address of No. 40, Riley and Myers, was given as Second street. This firm is located at the corner of Hewes and Third streets.—Adv.

PATRICK MARTIN

Succumbs to Typhoid Fever in His Home in the Glen Elk Addition.

After an illness covering ten weeks Patrick Martin, an aged citizen for several years employed at the city postoffice, died at his home on Clark street in Glen Elk at 1 o'clock Thursday morning. (The immediate cause of his death was typhoid fever following a severe attack of rheumatism. Mr. Martin was an esteemed citizen, a conscientious member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and a man of splendid civic ability.

The deceased man is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Martin, one brother, Thomas Martin, of this city; one sister, Mrs. Martin Killen, of Monongah; and nine children, five sons and four daughters. The sons are William, Dominick, Frank, Joseph and Ferdinand, and the daughters are Misses Mary, Ann, Lucy and Bernadine.

The funeral will be held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. P. H. McDermott, rector of the church, will celebrate a requiem high mass. The burial will be in the Holy Cross cemetery.

POOL

Of Some Dimensions is the Hope of Oil Well Operators at Shinnston.

Two miles west of Sardis, in Sardis district, this county, the Hopp Natural Gas Company has drilled No. 3 on the Robey heirs' farm through the fifth sand and has a small gas well.

In the same district the South Penn Oil Company has shot and cleaned out its old No. 3, on the J. W. Looman farm and increased its production from nine to twenty barrels a day.

Shooting and cleaning out old wells is now something of a feature in all the West Virginia fields.

On the West Fork river, Clay district, the Philadelphia Company's Nos. 3 and 4 and the Lucas Brothers farm, after holding at 400 barrels a day for a good many weeks, have declined to 350 barrels a day. In the same district the Bull Moose Oil Company's well on the Richardson lot has declined to less than 100 barrels a day.

Basing their opinion on the way the wells in this district have been holding up, operators are favorably impressed with the prospects for a pool of some dimensions.
